

"To say a pleasant word to anyone was almost impossible."

"I was troubled with female weakness for many years, and suffered more than I can tell. I was told that I was suffering from a disease called 'Leucorrhoea' and was advised to take a course of treatment. I tried many remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was almost hopeless. Then I read of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and decided to try it. I had two operations performed by one of the best surgeons of the West, but did not get relief. Then, against my doctor's strict orders, I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and also followed the advice given in the Common Sense Medical Adviser. I continued this treatment for three months, and today am as healthy and well as a woman can be. I cannot thank Dr. Pierce enough for his kind letters to me."

Womanly diseases, as a rule, spoil the "disposition," because of the extreme nervousness and suffering they cause. Happenings as well as health is restored to the woman whose diseased condition is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After eight years of suffering and two fruitless operations, three months' use of "Favorite Prescription" restored Mrs. Moore to perfect health. This great remedy for women's ills, establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1000 large pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to any address of mailing card. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Take Lyon's Laxative Syrup: an ideal remedy for babies and children, as it is pleasant to take and perfectly harmless under all circumstances. Price 25c.

I have had occasion to use your Black-Drum Stock and Poultry Medicine and am pleased to say that I never used anything for stock that gave half as good satisfaction. I heartily recommend it to all owners of stock. J. B. BELSHER, St. Louis, Mo.

Sick stock or poultry should not eat cheap stock food any more than sick persons should expect to be cured by food. When your stock and poultry are sick give them medicine. Don't stuff them with worthless stock foods. Unload the bowels and stir up the torpid liver and the animal will be cured. It is so possible to cure it. Black-Drum Stock and Poultry Medicine unloads the bowels and stirs up the torpid liver. It cures every malady of stock if taken in time. Secure a 25-cent can of Black-Drum Stock and Poultry Medicine and it will pay for itself ten times over. Horses work better. Cows give more milk. Hogs gain flesh. And hens lay more eggs. It solves the problem of making as much blood, milk and energy as possible out of the smallest amount of food consumed. Buy a can from your dealer.

PIRATE HOME

Well Preserved Hut Still Visible in Lyon County.

Was Once the Abode of the "Harper," Famous in Kentucky History.

Passengers passing across the Illinois Central bridge over Cumberland river, a few miles west of this city, may, by shading their eyes, see down the stream on the Livingston county bank the remains of an old stone house, says the Kettawa Times.

The exact location is near where Livingston creek empties into the Cumberland. The ruin has been standing there as long as the oldest citizens can remember. The structure was erected by "Big Harper" and "Little Harper," the noted river pirates, who made themselves a terror on the Ohio and Cumberland rivers for many years while the country was sparsely settled.

A story is handed down from some pioneer settlers that the Harpers buried an immense amount of their stolen treasure near their stone habitation, and many persons have searched for it in vain. During recent years romantic stories of the buried treasure have been set afloat in the neighborhood and an effort to locate it has been made. The old stone house was once a regular fortress against an attack. It had only one way of ingress and there were numerous openings in the thick walls for the pirate kings to shoot at approaching enemies. Many of the older citizens are yet firm in the belief that the alleged buried treasure there exists.

Prize Fighting.

Hartford is rapidly becoming the great prize fighting center of the country. Young Hartford turns out every afternoon to engage in scientific fights, and older Hartford turns out to witness the sport. Be it said to the credit of Hartford's boys that they are all game and put up plucky fights.

For the present Dodson's stable is the scene of these splendid exhibitions of manly sport, but a large building for the purpose is in course of contemplation. No admission is charged at these exhibitions and the public will find open doors.

FIRST MILL STONES

Ever Brought to America Are Now Within the Borders of Ohio County.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN.—In your issue of the 6th inst., you gave an account of an old set of mill stones, now in Garrard county, made of Kentucky lime stone, which ground corn for the early settlers over 100 years ago, and which, is no doubt, so, but there is, perhaps, but a few that know the first mill stones ever used in America are now in Ohio county, and in a good state of preservation. Under the head of Forbes' Letter, The Kentucky Standard of March 16, 1899, says this:

"Three miles east of Fordville on the Texas branch railroad, in Ohio county, is the little town known as Jones Station. On the east side of the town, the railroad crosses the small creek known as the East Fork of Adam's Fork creek. A few yards above the railroad bridge is yet to be seen the ruin of an old water mill, and in the bed of the creek, where the water is low, can be seen a pair of old mill stones of very ancient pattern."

"But few, if any of the living inhabitants of this community, know anything of these old mill stones and appear to care less. Some years ago I had a talk with the late Remus G. Whittinghill about these old French bur mill stones. Mr. Whittinghill, then an old man, said that his father, John Whittinghill, came to Mercer county, Ky., from near the Rock Bridge, in Rockbridge county, Va., when a youth and on the 15th day of October he came to Ohio county and settled on the farm Jones' Station is now on. He said about the year 1840 his father built a grist mill on the creek near the Whittinghill homestead and in answer to my question: 'Where did your father get the mill stones?' he said that he bought them in Mercer county, and hauled them to his mill in Ohio county. John Whittinghill died at the old Whittinghill mansion, which is still standing, September 17, 1846, in the 70th year of his age, and a few years after his death his mill, for want of water power, was abandoned to neglect and ruin."

"No further account of the old mill stones can be obtained here and we can only surmise their early history, which will, no doubt be the following: That the stones were brought from England to Virginia during the early colonial days and as the settlements increased they were taken westward and they were no doubt the first stones to grind corn for Capt. James Harrod and his gallant band of pioneer settlers at Ft. Harrod—now Harrodsburg—and the stones should be returned to the citizens of Harrodsburg as relics of the bold adventurers who not only hurried back Indian atrocities, but made smooth the path for generations yet to rise up."

The article, after describing other relics now in the Fordville community, is signed by Edwin Forbes. Fordville, March 16.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP

Cured by one Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only be of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." HIGHER LAW

Than That of Man Calls Altie Melton to Account for His Crime!

Miss Jessie Melton Dies and Mrs. John Culver yet in a Precarious Condition!

A higher law than that of man called Altie Melton, the murderer and suicide, to account for the horrible crimes he committed, an account of which was given in our last issue.

Melton, as stated, was brought to Morgantown Thursday afternoon of last week and placed in jail. Medical attention was given before the officers left Hitesville with him and also after he reached this city. When placed in his cell Thursday night it was thought he had recovered sufficiently from the Paris Green taken in his barn to be out of danger, but Friday morning it was discovered that he was much worse.

He was then brought out of jail and placed on a bed in the guard room and given every attention, but the effects of the self-administered poison proved fatal and at 10 minutes after 10 o'clock Friday night he died.

After his death his wife and people were notified, but, remembering the dastardly crimes he had committed, they refused to take charge of his remains, so he was buried in the county cemetery at the poor house.

Miss Jessie Melton, one of his victims, died Friday morning and was buried Saturday at Highland.

Mrs. John Culver, the other victim of his deadly aim, is still alive at this writing, though her condition is such as to cause doubt and alarm. It is not thought that she can recover.

It seems to be the general opinion among those who knew Melton that he was not crazy at the time he committed the heinous deed. Some time previous to the tragedy of last week, we are informed, he got a rope ready and endeavored to compel his step-daughter to assist him in hanging his wife. At the time there was some talk around Hitesville about taking him out and hanging him.

Melton had some personal property at the time of this death and Mr. Chas. Dorp has been appointed to administer the estate.—Morgantown Sun.

In Memoriam.

Peter Haffey died March 3, in Louisville, where he had taken work in the I. C. R. R. round house. He had worked three weeks when he was taken ill with pneumonia, and only lived six days. Mr. Haffey was born in Ireland, February 27, 1856, came to America in his teens, and married Miss Annie B. Felix, daughter of Mr. John I. Felix, in October 1883. Mr. Haffey was buried March 4, in St. Louis Catholic Cemetery, at Louisville. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn for him. But weep not, for your loss is his gain. When his nurse thought danger was near, telephoned Mrs. Haffey, but before she arrived in Louisville, his soul had taken its flight to the beautiful beyond. But little did his wife think, when she was speeding on her way to his assistance, that she would find her dear companion a corpse, but all was well with him. Mr. Haffey was a cousin of Mr. Patrick Haffey, of Whitesville. A FRIEND.

In Memory of Mrs. Ella May Tichenor.

Last Monday evening as darkness overshadowed the home of Mr. Harlan Sichenor and carried up to heaven his darling companion, Ella, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. May. She was in the twenty-fifth year of her age, and joined the Methodist church, in which she has lived a devout christian life. We cannot see why it is, one so young and fair, just budding into womanhood, should have so short a journey on the sea of life, but we feel assured that she is singing praises with the angels. Her dying words were, "Do not grieve, 'tis easy to die, Jesus is with me, I want you all to trust in him for life doeth all things well" and passed sweetly away. Dear husband and mother and other relatives it would be useless for me to say, weep not, for I know you can't help but weep, but while God has spared you try to be as well prepared as dear Ella was when the Lord calls for you and you will never be an unbroken family in heaven. Her suffering here on earth is over, and she has gone to meet her father and darling babe whom were laid by her side. EMMA.

Danger of Colds and Grip.
The greatest danger from colds and grip is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. It will cure a cold or an attack of the grip in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

Dowie May Wear Wings.

Chicago, March 17.—The call has gone forth from Zion City to all the members of the Faithful within a radius of 100 miles of Chicago to be at Shiloh Tabernacle Monday night.

A great special meeting has been arranged. John Alexander Dowie, in his capacity as general overseer of the Christian Catholic church in Zion, announces that he will not preside. Instead, he will sit as Elijah, the Restorer. He promises to come out with a strong affirmation of the Elijah platform of 1901. He may even descend to wear his wings.

There are a few doctrinal points which he intends unraveling for the benefit of doubting Thomases of his flock. Then, he announces, he will tell about the completed arrangements for the proposed invasion of New York. There will be the final promulgation of the plan to turn loose a horde of apostles in Gotham who are to make a house-to-house canvass until 4,000,000 persons have been invited to join Dowie and pay tithes.

Dowie says: "The times of restoration are at hand. Much lies before us on this solid land, but much more lies before us in the lands beyond the seas."

STRANGE

Story of a Missouri Man, of a Long Search for His Kidnapped Wife.

Located at McHenry and the Abductor Arrested and Lodged in Jail Tuesday.

Tuesday morning a well-dressed, prosperous looking stranger, about thirty-five years old, appeared in Judge Miller's office and told that official a story that sounds more like a fairy tale than a story from real life.

He said that his name was Sellie Douglas, that his home was Columbia, Missouri, and asked for a warrant of arrest for Jack King, whom he charged with taking, by force, custody of his wife, Lovie Douglas, from his home at Columbia, Missouri, in September, 1901, and detaining her against her will since that date.

Sheriff Cal P. Keown and Jailer T. H. Black left at noon for McHenry to arrest King, who was an employee of the Central Coal & Iron Company there. When the officers arrested King, the woman isolated, and was revived without difficulty and the officers reached here with King and the woman about nine o'clock. Upon their arrival here, the kidnapper and the kidnapped one, ordered a drink of whiskey, which the officers reluctantly allowed served them. The woman drained the glass in the regulation way in the presence of a curious crowd.

When King and the woman had drained their glasses to the dregs, he asked to be allowed to see Lovie comfortably fixed in her room at the hotel before he took his quarters for the night, and perhaps many another night, in the County Jail, which favor Sheriff Keown generously granted.

The final parting of "Jack" and "Lovie," was loving and affectionate.

The abducted one, who had made the trip from McHenry to Hartford in the abductor's arms, had, with one arm about his neck, drank from her other hand, his health, now gave him a final embrace, a kiss and a pleasant "good night," and King went to Tom Black's for supper.

When left alone in her room, Lovie's thoughts still turned to love, but with her abductor safely caged, she did not call for her husband from those loving arms she had been so ruthlessly and mercilessly torn these eighteen months ago, but told the night clerk to bring her a novel.

"Pearl Bryan" was hastily selected for her by the accommodating clerk.

While these incidents were transpiring, Douglas was in the County Attorney's office, where he remained until King had gone to jail and Lovie to her room.

Left alone in her room, Lovie soon tired of the story of the unhappy fate of Pearl Bryan and dispatched a messenger for Douglas. When Douglas entered the room, Lovie shook hands with him and made some formal inquiries about the folks at home.

The loving embrace and impassioned kiss lavished on King a few minutes before were not duplicated for the husband. After Douglas and Lovie had held a conference for sometime, they came down to the hotel office and registered as S. Douglas and wife, Columbia, Mo.

County Attorney W. H. Barnes and Attorney Claude Smith remained in the room with Douglas and his wife for sometime. After a general conversation of a few minutes, Douglas' wife began to recount to him the events of her life since she had been separated from him, and soon they were in each others' arms, weeping like children. The woman's story, as recounted that night in the presence of her husband, to the officers, recounts, it true, an experience that falls to the unhappy lot of few women.

LOVIE'S STORY.

In September, 1901, our family, myself, my husband and little boy, were rooming in a flat in Jefferson City, Missouri. This man King occupied a room on the same floor. One morning King gave my little boy some candy and gave him also a piece of candy to bring to me. My little boy told me afterward that King poured some liquid on the candy he sent me.

After some little time had elapsed, as my boy told me later—I did not know what I was doing at the time—a closed wagon drove up to the door and King placed me and the boy in the wagon and drove to the depot, from where we went to St. Louis by train. I first recognized my situation after we reached St. Louis and was almost crazed when I realized it, but King threatened me with instant death if I did not live with him as his wife, and said he would also kill my child and husband. I finally managed to get my boy on the train and sent him home to my husband with the story of my condition, but when King found the boy had gone, he made me leave St. Louis with him at once and after wandering about through the South, we finally reached McHenry about six months ago. I walked the entire trip from St. Louis.

About three months ago, King forced me to write my husband for money, but I added a post-script when King was not present and told Sellie not to send money, but if he sent anything to send me some clothes and he sent this dress I am now wearing.

On the 6th of this month I wrote

Sellie fully about my galling slavery and the peril of trying to escape. Turning to her husband she asked: "Sellie, why didn't you bring that letter with you?" Douglas handed her two letters. "See, here it is, just as I told you, and here is the one with the post-script, too. Gentlemen, read them yourselves. I am as happy as a school girl now, after all these dreadful days are over, and that man safe behind the bars."

DOUGLAS' STORY.

My name is Sellie Douglas; I am 38 years old, live at Columbia, Missouri, and am a plasterer by trade. On the morning of the 12th day of September, 1901, I went to my work as usual and when I returned at night my wife was gone.

My wife and I had been married twelve years, during which time she had been a true and faithful companion and a pious christian woman. I could not account for her going away with a strange man and made many efforts to locate her, but without avail, until about three months ago, when she wrote me from McHenry, Ky., to send her $30.00, which I did, but began to investigate the circumstances of her being there, which I had not effected satisfactorily when she wrote me again not to send her any more money, as she had been forced, by a man by the name of King, who had kidnapped her from our home and kept her with him by threats of violence, to demand money from me.

Having perfect confidence in her as a woman, wife and christian, I came here and took legal steps to liberate her from her galling slavery.

KING'S VERSION OF THE AFFAIR.

King's trunk story, including, as it does, his criminal conduct, lends interest to his statements. He says: "My name is J. W. King; I am 39 years old, and was born in New York City. I am a machinist and have worked in many of the large cities of the country. In the fall of 1901 I was repairing some machinery in a newspaper plant at Jefferson City, Missouri, and met a lady, at my boarding house, who claimed to be Lovie B. Moore. Her room was across a hall from mine, but I had no conversation with her until one morning she accosted me with the complaint that she was suffering for want of food. Her lean body and colorless face attested the genuineness of her complaint and I relieved her want, for which she made many expressions of gratitude, and finally, when I was about to leave the city, begged me to take her with me. I was a single man, and fancied the woman, so, we joined our fortunes together and finally, in pursuit of my trade, we came to McHenry.

"After we came here she told me of her husband in Missouri, about whose existence I had never heard before. I then insisted that if she preferred to remain with me, that she go back to Missouri and get a divorce from her husband, that we might marry, to which she agreed. I offered to furnish her money for the trip, but she said that Douglas should pay the expense and she wrote him for the money, and she would have gone back to Missouri at once to introduce divorce proceedings, had not Douglas appeared on the scene here."

KING PLEADS GUILTY.

King was arraigned before Judge Miller Wednesday afternoon and pleaded guilty to six counts, charging him with adultery and was fined $20 in each count. He went to jail where he will be confined sixty days to satisfy the fine.

King sent Lovie a note, just before noon Wednesday, asking her to visit him at the jail. The woman read the note with apparent interest and showed some disposition to visit her recent paramour, but Douglas declined to let her see the Scotch machinist.

King showed his disappointment, when told late Wednesday afternoon, that Douglas and Lovie had been speeding on their way to Missouri. "He made her go, but she will not stay with him," was his serious comment.

King is apparently really fond of the Douglas woman and asked a visitor to the jail to send an officer to the jail before whom he might prefer the same charge against her to which he had already entered a plea of guilty, but his bird had already flown. His purpose in preferring the charge, was to detain her here, rather than to secure her punishment.

All the parties to the unfortunate affair are intelligent and of very respectable appearance.

Ratified.

Washington, March 17.—Without dotting an "i" or crossing a "t" even without changing a single punctuation mark, the Senate to day voted to ratify the treaty with Republic of Colombia for the construction of an isthmian canal. The vote for ratification was seventy three in the affirmative to five in the negative. The Senate was in executive session when the result was announced, so that only the Senators themselves and a few confidential employees were present.

Prices of commodities are high as a result of the Protective Tariff; labor is generally employed at good wages as a result of Protection. High prices and prosperity go together, while low prices are producers of destitution and idleness. Congress has no call to indulge in Tariff tinkering to unsettle present conditions.—Sheffield (Ala.) Reeper.

You Can See Without Eyes.

Prof. Peter Steins alleges that he has discovered the secret of restoring sight to the blind. The announcement is published in the Review des Revues by Dr. Caze, who explains how Prof. Steins tested on him a wonderful apparatus of Prof. Steins' invention by which the professor is not only able to restore lost sight, but to give vision to those who have never known it.

Prof. Steins took Dr. Caze into a dark room and bandaged his eyes so he could not see. He heard the professor walk to and fro, strike a match and light a lamp. Then he felt an apparatus fixed around his temples, whereupon he instantly saw a dim light, which enabled him to distinguish surrounding objects.

Presently the light became stronger, and Dr. Caze was able to count the professor's fingers when they were held up before him and to enumerate other things in the room.

Just as he was feeling that his vision was clearing farther and he was convinced that he would soon see normally Prof. Steins suddenly removed the apparatus and Dr. Caze was in total darkness.

Prof. Steins' claim rests on the theory that man does not see with the eye, but with the brain, the eye only serving to receive the image, which the optic nerve transmits to the seat of perception.

If, then, the image can be transmitted to the brain without eyes, a blind person can see as well as anybody else.

The professor's apparatus has the same scientific basis as the telephone, with the substitution of light for sound.

Dr. Caze says that several other physicians have experimented with the apparatus but none of them is able to explain how the astounding results are obtained—London Cable to the New York Sun.

Baker Withdraws.

Taylor Mines, Ky., March 17.—Mr. John H. I desire to most heartily thank the good people of Ohio county for their expressions of confidence, their loyal support and their general hospitality while a candidate.

I have accepted the office of secretary and treasurer for the Miners of Western Kentucky, which is a position of trust and honor, is my only reason for withdrawing from the race for Representative.

Found Dead.

Warren L. Maddox was found dead in his room at McHenry Monday morning. He died of heart failure. Mr. Maddox was living with his son-in-law, Mr. R. L. Brown, and when a member of the family went to awaken him Monday morning found him dead. Coroner Ben L. Davis was summoned and held an inquest over the body.

Mr. Maddox was about fifty years old at the time of his death. Other members of his family have died suddenly of similar trouble.

Killed by Street Car.

Miss Nannie Tanner, of Owensboro, was run over and killed by a street car in that city about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. Miss Tanner crossed the track in front of a waiting car and just as she cleared the track turned back just in front of the car, which had started, and her body was ground to pieces under the wheels of the car. A coroner's jury exonerated motorman Husk and conductor Kinner, who were in charge of the car. Miss Tanner was about sixty years old. She was an aunt of Mrs. E. P. Thomas, of Hartford, and had visited here recently.

KILLING AT McHENRY.

Ben Rogers Kills Al Chinn in the Engine Room of the Power House and Escapes.

Ben Rogers stabbed Al Chinn to death at McHenry Saturday night and immediately fled the county, and has not yet been captured. Both were colored men.

Details of the tragedy can not be obtained as the only witness to the killing—a sister-in-law to Rogers—refuses to talk. However, Rogers and his wife's sister, called at the engine house about 9 o'clock and an argument of some character ensued which resulted in Rogers hacking Chinn to pieces with a razor.

Rogers was considered a dangerous negro, especially when under the influence of liquor. Chinn was a man of good character and had accumulated some property. He had been an employee of the coal Company at McHenry for twenty years.

Death of an Old Citizen.

At his home, one mile south of Shreve, Christopher C. White died, Wednesday, of a complication of troubles incident to old age. He was one of the oldest citizens of the county, having reached the rare age of four score and nine years. He was born in Fayette county, and removed to Louisville in his youth. To the writer he has related many incidents connected with the early history of the metropolis. He remembered distinctly the construction of the canal around the rapids in the Ohio, and the hanging of two murderers, one a negro boat driver and the other a common artisan, in the early days of the city. He was present and witnessed the execution of Moses and Bob Kelley, at Havesville, for the murder of a flatboat crew, almost a century ago. He possessed tenacious memory, recalling with remarkable distinctness many incidents of his early life. He had a knowledge of astronomy possessed by few of his extremely limited opportunities. All through his long and eventful life he was noted for his superior physical strength, his eccentricity and unquestioned honesty. "Uncle Kit" as he was familiarly known, is the last of a large family, almost all of whom have had their lives extended beyond the ordinary time limited to man. He will be missed by his many relatives and friends. His interment took place yesterday at Pleasant Grove cemetery in the presence of a large assemblage.

There is a best time for doing everything—that is, a time when a thing can be done to the best advantage, most easily and most effectively. Now is the best time for purifying your blood. Why? Because your system is now trying to purify it—you know this by the pimples and other eruptions that have come on your face and body.

Important Ruling.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has issued a ruling forbidding the use of any strip of paper or other material over the cork of bottled whisky which might be construed to be in similitude of the green bottling in bond stamp used by the government as a guarantee of purity.

This ruling is of widespread interest as the use of private devices of various colors and designs strips over the corks of bottled whisky was in vogue long before the passage of the bottling in bond act.

The ruling does not forbid the further use of private strips, but merely prohibits those which are calculated to mislead the public into thinking the whisky is bottled in bond.—Owensboro Messenger.
